

Local Number Portability (LNP)

On November 24, 2003, the Federal Communications Commission enacted a new regulation to allow you greater flexibility with your home telephone number. You may switch your home number from a traditional land telephone line to a cellular or wireless telephone. You may also choose to switch your service to DSL or Cable. Should you choose any of these options, please be aware this action may disconnect the path your security system uses to communicate with our monitoring station. This will prevent any alarm activation from reporting to the monitoring station so we will be unable to respond in the event of an emergency.

If you feel you would like to make any changes in your telephone service, please contact your Vector Security sales consultant before doing so. Your consultant can assist you in making sure your monitoring services remain active. They can also show you our full line of wireless security products that can meet most needs.

Should you have any questions or need additional explanation, please contact your local Vector Security office.
