The Vector Security Home Security Blog Celebrates Its First Year and 100th Post

PITTSBURGH, PA – December 9, 2014 – Vector Security, a leading provider of home security systems and home automation offerings announces the one year anniversary of its home security blog. The Intelligent Home Security Blog offers insight into home security solutions, as well as a look at residential security trends, products and news. Over the past year, the blog has focused content on: tips for security and safety; home emergency preparedness; and smart home automation solutions.

During the month of December, the Company will post its 100th blog article. The Intelligent Home Security Blog can be viewed at www.vectorsecurity.com/blog

“We launched our blog to provide a resource for homeowners to find tips, research and information on home security and home automation,” said Art Miller, VP of Marketing for Vector Security. “Our main goal has been to create a resource homeowners can reference for insights into evolving home security technologies and smart home offerings, as they make decisions related to protecting and automating their homes.”

The Intelligent Home Security Blog is read by thousands of subscribers each week and blog articles have been shared thousands of times across social media. In addition to individual blog articles, the site also hosts eBooks on topics like “Smart Homes: The Basic of Home Automation” and “Mobile Home Security: A Starter Guide.”
